“Let's prepare water in case of disaster!” さいがい そな みず じゅんび 災害に備えて水を準備しましょう！

Let's prepare water to get ready for disasters! In Japan, there are many rainy days from around June through summer. This is called the rainy season (Tsuyu). When it rains heavily, there is a danger of floods and landslides. Stay away from rivers and steep slopes and evacuate early if you feel it is dangerous. When a disaster occurs, the water supply may cut off. To prepare for water outages, please keep drinking water ready at home. The standard guideline is 3 liters per person per day, for 3 days or more. Keep plastic-bottled water in a cool, dark place. Please also check the expiration date. It is good practice to restock only the amount you have used.

You should also prepare containers for holding water (such as plastic water tanks or empty plastic bottles).

How to Prevent Heatstroke ねうちゅうしょう き 熱中症に 気をつけましょう

When temperature and humidity are high, the balance of water and salt inside the body is disrupted. Then, the body becomes unable to regulate its temperature, and heatstroke occurs. Heatstroke can happen not only outside the house but also inside the house.

[Things to be careful of to avoid heatstroke]

- Eat well-balanced meals. Rest well. • Drink water frequently, even if you are not thirsty.
- When going outside, wear cool clothes and use an umbrella or hat. Avoid direct sunlight.
- Use air conditioners or electric fans. • Do not leave children alone inside a car, even for a short time.

[If there is someone who got heatstroke]

- Move them to a cool place or shade. • Loosen their clothes and let them lie down.
- Cool their body. • Have them take water and salt.
- If they do not respond when you call out to them, call an ambulance immediately (dial 119).
